Orange County Tees Off Against Child Abuse

Orange, CA – August 25, 2009 – Orange County's top business and community leaders "Teed off" against child abuse at the Child Abuse Prevention Center's Charity Golf Classic on Monday, August 17, at the El Niguel Country Club in Laguna Niguel. This 8th annual tournament made great strides in the fight against child abuse by raising more than $40,000 for the Prevention Center's in-home child abuse prevention, parenting education and mental health programs.

"This was a great day out! Concerned people made this happen: our Board, the committee, our volunteers, and generous players. They had a great time. And these same people show equal concern for the families we serve. The proceeds from today will help make a huge difference in our clients' lives," commented Child Abuse Prevention Center's Executive Director, Scott Trotter.

This is the fourth year that co-chairs Ed Inal of Western Digital and Jeff Shepard of CRESA Partners have partnered with the Prevention Center in its effort to break the generational cycle of child abuse in Orange County. Joining them were the tournament's
