

In-Home Mental Health

Providing in-home therapy to at-risk families

In-Home Mental Health serves at-risk families with children 0-5 years old in their homes. Our staff of mental health clinicians works with each family on a weekly basis to provide assessment, treatment planning, intervention, resource development and other therapeutic services.

The focus of In-Home Mental Health is to offer services to families in need by:

- Providing services regardless of finances, transportation, child care or lack of insurance
- Providing support through mental health therapy/counseling services
- Assisting families in improving individual and overall social and emotional functioning
- Connecting families with ongoing support through community resources

In-Home Mental Health Benefits Include:

- Positive interaction with a non-judgmental, objective clinician
- Improved functioning in multiple areas of daily living
- Increased access to community resources
- Improved social support
- Increased positive views on life and general outlook
